

David Zelikovsky for BAH - Belgian Art House

Made in Wonderland, by Dirk Janssens was one of the most popular exhibitions to grace the halls of Chelsea, NYC in 2011. Janssens now continues his journey with the debut of Lost in Wonderland at the Belgian Art House. Janssens' magically optimistic outlook on the world is contagious and few can resist the charm of his message. Giddy and glorified, Janssens has become the defender of all that is good and worth fighting for; that being the boundless joys of love and human interaction.

Refocusing our attentions from difficult times to our essential goodness innate, Wonderland conquers all. Janssens' work greets the world with spontaneity, encouraging a new hope and faith. His work is the very beacon that brings light to the darkness of the present global economic shroud and will be the very same beacon that bridges humanity once it is discarded.
